Although clause 4 of the Poona Rationing Regulations, 1950, is capable of the construction that an additional liability is thrown upon the guardian and that the minor continues to be liable subject of course tb the well-established rule regarding exemption of liability in respect of children below a particular age (7 or 12 as in the Indian Penal Code), a prosecution in this case does not seem expedient in view of the fact that the alleged minor is shown not to have drawn the ration and the person who drew the ration is not xx traceable.
